Ellenville Fair Closed With Good Automobile Races

Plenty of Thrills Furnished Crowd That Attended Ellenville County's Annual Fair on the Closing Day—All of the Drivers Escaped Without Injury—Another Pony Race Held.

Plenty of thrills were furnished the crowd that attended the closing program of the thirty-ninth annual Ellenville County Fair at Ellenville Friday. Five auto races were put on in the afternoon and much interest was manifested in the sport. There was also one pony race. An excellent band concert by the Citizens Band of Kingston and the balloon ascension and parachute jump were much enjoyed. An admirable display of fireworks Friday night marked the end of the fair.

The Hallenbeck Handicap was the outstanding thrill producer of the auto races. It was won by Ben Brace of Ellenville in 6:51 2-5. Brace drove the Ford Special of Levi Jansen of Wallkill. He will be awarded a silver cup to be presented by Lloyd M. Hallenbeck of Ellenville.

The other cars in the event which was for stock and non-stock cars, were Clark Special, J. Clark of Walden driver, 6:52; Ulico Special, C. V. Dunn of Newburgh driver, 6:56 2-5; Chevrolet Special, Dick Dickinson of Walden, driver, 7:19.

New Yorker Wins.

The first event was won by Bill Lorie of New York city who drove a Duesenberg around the five mile course in 6:54. He was followed by A. Benton of Leurenkill, N. Y., in a Liberty Special, 6:55 2-5; C. V. Dunn, Newburgh, Ulico Special, 7:01; Ben Brace, Ellenville, Rayo Special, 8:00.

Walden Driver a Winner.

The second event was captured by Dick Dickinson of Walden in a Chevrolet Special in 6:49. Second place was taken by Ben Brace of Ellenville in a Ford Special, 6:53, and third by John Clark of Walden in a Clark Special, 7:02 2-5. There were five cars in this race but two left the track. A Ford Special, driven by Bill Bestner of Walden, had to quit in the second lap due to engine trouble while in the eighth lap McLean in a Ford Special No. 12 was called off the course by his mechanics owing to wheel trouble not noticed by the driver but which might have caused an accident had the car remained on the track. McLean was going strong and had a fourth position when told to leave the race.

Event Number Three.

Event No. 3 was a very exciting one. It was taken by A. Benton of Leurenkill, N. Y., in a Liberty Special, the time 6:54. Dunn clinched the lead in the first lap, followed by Bill Lorie of New York city in a Duesenberg. C. V. Dunn of Newburgh, in an Ulico Special, dropped into third with a Rayo Special No. 24, driven by Ben Brace, trailing him. Dunn did some superior driving and in the fourth lap rolled into second place. He was gaining on the leading car until the sixth when his right wheel left the wheel and by a miracle the car stopped along the sidelines with no damage to the other competitors. Bill Lorie of New York finished second with his Duesenberg, 7:00, 3-5, with Ben Brace, Ellenville, in a Rayo Special, third.

Wallkill Driver Wins.

The fourth event, won by Ben Brace driving a Ford Special for Levi Jansen of Wallkill, held considerable thrills. In the eighth lap the right rear wheel of Charles McLean's Ford Special was shattered when he endeavored to make the wide curve on the right of the judges' stand and ended his chances by finishing third. The winner, Ben Brace of Ellenville, finished in 6:56 4-5; Dick Dickinson of Walden, in a Chevrolet Special, 6:57 3-5; and John Clark of Walden in a Clark Special, 7:10.

The Pony Race.

The pony race, which covered a course of one half mile, was captured from Arthur Beletas on Candy Kid by Louis Dusenberry on Major. The time was 1:05 2-5.

The judges were George Sherry, Frank Douglas, Edd Vandervliet, Floyd Ackley; starter, Lloyd M. Hallenbeck.

The large attendance did not forget to visit the exhibits even though it was the closing day of the fair. The refreshment stands were well patronized and the amusements furnished held considerable attraction.

Parachute Jumper Thrills Crowd.

Many inspected the balloon before its ascension and eagerly waited for the parachute drop after the large ball filled with gas went up in the air. The balloon arose to lofty heights in the clouds which were fast collecting before the parachute jumper seemingly no larger than an ordinary doll, made the thrilling descent.

The success of the fair, which will be remembered by many as one of the most successful ever held at Ellenville, is due in no little measure to the executive committee. Clarence A. Hoonbeck, E. Gordon Jansen and E. C. Hoemer.

Amelia Schipp Arrested.

Amelia Schipp was arrested Friday evening by Officers Fitzgerald and Brophy on a warrant charging her with violation of parole from Bedford. She was locked up in the county jail to await the arrival of an officer from that institution.

The long established Ahlers' grocery business at No. 23 Hone street has been sold by Mrs. Katherine Ahlers to Harry Stone and wife of this city who will take possession in September. The transaction includes the retail grocery business and residence property at No. 23 Hone street and the adjoining dwelling on Hunter street.

The grocery business was established by Mrs. Ahlers' husband, the late F. A. Ahlers, in 1885 and since his death in 1912 has been continued by his widow and son, Fred W. Ahlers. It is considered one of the best grocery stores in that section of the city.

Mrs. Ahlers will continue to reside in Kingston. Her son's plans for the future are indefinite.

The price paid for the store and two dwellings was not made public.

Sacco Paraders Will Defy Police

In New York City on Monday Where Plans for Parading With Ashes of Sacco and Vanzetti Through the Streets Continue Despite Refusal of Commissioner Warren to Grant a Permit.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—The ashes of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti will be paraded through New York streets Monday in defiance of the orders of Police Commissioner Warren.

"Permit or no permit," said Mrs. Clara Michelson of the Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Committee, "the procession will be held," adding she failed to see "how the commissioner could be so brutal as to deny hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers the right to pay their last respect to these two murdered radicals." Commissioner Warren has refused a parade permit.

Fifty thousand persons will participate in a meeting and funeral procession, said Mrs. Michelson, gathering late Monday afternoon in Union Square, shortly after the arrival of the ashes of the executed men from Boston.

The ashes will be borne to a hall as yet unnamed, where all workers have been requested to bring red carnations to place upon the urns containing the remains of the radicals. The ashes will lie in state here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at which time Miss Lucia Vanzetti will start for Italy with her brother's remains. Disposition of the ashes of Sacco has not been disclosed by his widow.

Hurl Bomb Into French Dance Hall

Native of Russia Dies From Injuries Sustained at Time—Bomb Fell Between Dances or More of the Dancers Would Have Been Hurt.

Nice, France, Aug. 27 (AP).—Seven persons were injured, one fatally, by the explosion of a bomb thrown from a railroad track into an open-air dancing establishment at Juan-les-Pins, near here, last night. The bomb fell between dances, otherwise more persons would have been hurt. The dancers fled.

Louis Toledo, a Russian, one of those injured, died this morning. The police who at first thought the outrage work of anti-Fascists, now are inclined to believe the bomb was thrown by an anarchist who hoped to injure some of the wealthy foreigners gathered at the fashionable Riviera resort.

Three French citizens and three Russians were slightly injured by the bomb. It is stated that a number of others were wounded, but refused to make themselves known to the authorities. No Americans were involved.

SELLS GRAIN TO FEED PIGEONS IN SQUARE

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—Among Nelson's pigeons at Trafalgar Square there stands every day an elderly man who piles one of the quaintest trades in London.

Londoners call him Soldier Jim, for he fought in the Zulu war. At a penny a packet he supplies grain to feed the pigeons. Many of his customers are children.

Soldier Jim invented the trade about three years ago "when he was down on his luck."

"I often thought," he said, "when I saw people feeding the pigeons with bits of bread that it would be a good idea to have grain on the spot and one day I brought some packets down. They sold fast and I cleared six shillings in a few minutes."

Among Soldier Jim's regular customers is a woman who comes once a week from Tunbridge Wells. "I have known her to bring fourteen pounds of grain with her and then buy four more shillings worth from me," he said.

Sacco-Vanzetti Funeral on Sunday

Band Will Be Eliminated and Number of Mourners Reduced So That Procession Can Go Past the State House—Will Take Bodies to Forest Hills for Cremation—Many View Bodies.

Boston, Aug. 27 (AP).—Determined to maintain their protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti to the end, the Defense Committee has decided to do without a band and limit the number of mourners so that the funeral cortege can pass the State House and the Common where police have arrested nearly 300 persons engaged in previous demonstrations.

Granted a permit by the street commissioners to form an imposing line of march tomorrow, when the bodies will be carried to Forest Hills for cremation, the Committee was checked by the police, who declared the procession must take the direct route and avoid the State House where further disturbances were feared. With less than 200 persons following the hearses, the committee is enabled under the city ordinances to defy the police and proceed by any route desired.

Opposition of the health commissioners to the plan to have the coffins carried on the shoulders of mourners through the streets, resulted in the decision to use hearses. Directly following these will come automobiles carrying Mrs. Rosa Sacco and Miss Lucia Vanzetti, wife and sister of the executed men.

They have remained in retirement the past two days while thousands streamed past the red coffins as they lay in the small, dimly lighted funeral parlor in the North End Italian quarter.

For 14 hours yesterday a line of persons, some so young and small they could not peer into the coffins, some old and feeble, passed by the flower-banked caskets. Police maintained order in the waiting ranks outside, while four comrades stood watch in the parlor. Unofficial estimates placed the number of visitors at from 25,000 to 30,000. There was little demonstration of grief as they were hurried through the room with scarcely a glimpse of the still white-faced bodies.

Again today the bodies will lie in state for 14 hours and a final opportunity to bid them farewell will be given the public for three hours on Sunday before the funeral.

Buffalo Dry Agent Dismissed

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—Dwight Chamberlain, prohibition enforcement agent who has been under suspension since June 25, after a raid on the Waterloo Distillery, where he was assigned as a checker, has been dismissed from government service, Prohibition Administrator Andrew McCampbell was informed Friday by Commissioner James M. Doran.

No reason for Chamberlain's dismissal was given. He was formerly a clergyman, but said that he had gone into prohibition enforcement work because he was a zealous believer in the prohibition law. He gained considerable publicity a year ago as a supporter of Rev. L. E. H. Smith, the "trading pastor" of this city, and afterward had trouble with Eugene C. Roberts, former administrator here.

Confined in Well For Thirty Hours Is Rescued Alive

Auburn, Massachusetts Resident Trapped at Foot of Well That He Was Digging—Will Recover Unless Pneumonia Develops—Doctors Amazed at His Vitality.

Auburn, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP).—Released from 30 hours of confinement in the cold, damp bottom of his self-dug prison, Fred Lenau today was winning back his rugged strength at the Worcester City Hospital with every prospect of recovery unless pneumonia unexpectedly develops. He had been trapped at the foot of a 30-foot well he was digging.

Physicians were amazed at his vitality as they worked over his numbed limbs in which circulation had been stopped by his cramped position at the bottom of the well and gave him cautiously liquid nourishment, the first which had passed his lips in a day and a half.

"Thank God, thank God, they saved me," were his first words early this morning when, handed from worker to worker, he was lifted over the edge of the excavation. His voice failed him and he grasped the hand of the nearest policeman.

He was carried to the waiting ambulance but as he was lifted in, he exclaimed "Where is my other boot?" It was still imbedded in the muck of the well where for hours it had seemed Lenau himself must remain until death relieved him.

Mrs. Eva Lenau, his wife, bent and kissed him as the ambulance started the dash for the hospital. "God be praised," she murmured. "The worst of my experience," he told her as they sped away, "was the board against my chest which made it difficult to breathe. I never gave up hope. I am very grateful to my rescuers."

Dr. Richard Shanahan, who had waited for hours for the rescue, forbade him to say more. At the hospital it was found that no bones were broken and that apart from bruises, restricted circulation and chill, his condition was "good."

He responded rapidly to treatment and in an hour his wife left him to sleep while she hastened home to rejoice with their two children.

Drive for Stone Steps Fund Ends Sunday Evening

The drive for funds to defray the cost of repairing the stone steps in front of the Spring Street Lutheran Church will end tomorrow evening at six o'clock, when in the basement of the church a hot dinner will greet the canvassers on their enthusiastic return to report and deliver the funds collected. Mrs. Minnie Van Keuren, chairman, with a number of other ladies, will serve the dinner.

The drive was begun last Sunday, when the pastor, the Rev. William H. Prottsch, during the church services solemnly commissioned the canvassers at the altar to solicit among the members of the congregation. The sum aimed at is $875.

BERLIN CHIMNEY SWEEPS FORM BRASS BAND

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP).—Berlin's latest musical sensation is a band of chimney sweeps.

German chimney sweeps still wear the traditional stove-pipe hat, patent leather shoes, and black suits. In this garb their musical aggregation of 18 brass-band members is also clothed. The band master distinguishes himself by a white linen sack coat, like that worn by American barbers, over his black garb.

SPIDER WEB HOBBY LATEST ENGLISH CRAZE

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—The collection of spider webs is the newest craze of English collectors who have plenty of time to devote to their hobby.

The cobwebs are gathered carefully during the warm weather, sprayed with shellac and pressed between two pieces of glass. Collectors call them spidergrams, and say they are as different from one another as fingerprints.

Sacco-Vanzetti Sympathizers Fight

Cherbourg, France, Aug. 27 (AP).—Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, two thousand strong, fought a pitched battle with the forces of law and order from 8 o'clock last night until long past midnight in an effort to reach the American Consulate.

About fifteen of them attained the goal at midnight, but in charge of the policemen who had arrested them, the consulate being transformed into a temporary police station. Realizing there was no chance of getting the better of the police and soldiers, the others then dispersed.

Mexicans Again Attack Americans

Seizure of American-Owned Mining Company by Radicals in Second Attack During the Present Week—Mexican Government Takes Steps to Apprehend Men and Protect Company.

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP).—A second attack on Americans in Mexico during this week has occurred with the seizure of the American-owned Amparo Mining Company in the state of Jalisco by radicals who were reported to have besieged 18 Americans and 11 British subjects in their homes near the mines. Earlier in the week, Miss Florence Anderson of Los Angeles, was shot and fatally wounded during an attack on a train by a band of Mexicans at Acaponeta in the state of Nayarit.

While awaiting further details today of the seizure and the safety of the barricaded Americans, Washington government officials were informed in official press despatches that the Mexican government had already taken measures to assume charge of the situation and afford military protection to the besieged officials of the company, a silver mining concern.

Whether the seizure was a protest against the Sacco and Vanzetti executions was not determined in first reports received late yesterday by the State Department from its Guadalajara consul.

President Calles was reported in Mexico City dispatches to have instructed the military authorities of Jalisco to afford full protection to the company's officials while reports to the Mexican capital's newspapers said there was no violence nor were the lives of the Americans and Britishers endangered in the seizure.

The foreigners at the mines with the exception of the thirty besieged persons had left for Guadalajara, 40 miles away, according to the state department advice. The mining properties were reported to be suffering considerable loss through stoppage of work and are in danger of being flooded.

News of the pursuit of the bandit in the west coast state of Nayarit who caused Miss Anderson's death has not yet reached the state department. At Pomona, Calif., where she was a school teacher, it was revealed her slaying shattered a romance with Frederick Boehme of Stockton, Calif., another teacher, who was with her on the train.

Propose Dole Fliers' Memorial

San Francisco Examiner Suggests Erection of Monument Outside the Golden Gate—Navy's Search Is Still in Progress.

San Francisco, Aug. 27 (AP).—A lasting memorial to the missing Dole fliers, a monument outside the Golden Gate entrance to San Francisco Bay, the spot over which the three planes moved out into the Pacific, is proposed by the San Francisco Examiner editorially.

The Navy's search along the ocean lane to Honolulu was still in progress today. Admiral Richard H. Jackson, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, reiterated aboard his flagship, the dreadnaught California, in San Francisco harbor, that the sea quest would be abandoned only with the end of all hope of finding the aviators.

FRENCH SHOW GIRLS WON'T JOIN CHORUS

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—French show girls won't perform in the chorus, and Paris music halls have to employ English troupes that get five times the salary.

It is the French girl's spirit of independence, theatre managers say that keeps her out of the long rows, all costumed alike, that dance and kick in unison.

The English chorus girl costs a Parisian theatre 125 francs a day. The French girl, in minor roles, gets 25 francs.

Georgia-Brazil Plane Not Sighted Duet to Land Today

Only Once Since Journey of Redfern Started Has There Been Even Vague Tidings from Newest Viking of Skies—If He Goes on to Rio De Janeiro He Should Land Early Tonight.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 27 (AP).—With the blackness of two moonless nights behind him, Paul Redfern today sped his giant monoplane through its second successive dawn and onward to the goal of his solitary flight to Brazil, unless a whim of nature or mechanics has stopped him short in a tropic region out of touch with an eagerly waiting world.

Only once in his journey have even vague tidings been received of this newest Viking of the clouds. Thursday night a vessel reported him about 300 miles east of Nassau, Bahamas, but this information remains unconfirmed.

Scarcity of news was not translated into alarm, however, for the course that Redfern laid out carried him over virtually trackless seas and land. Continued silence will not become portent of danger until the hour of his planned arrival has passed—early tonight if he flies to Rio de Janeiro or near noon today if low fuel supply or another cause prompts him to avert eastward to Pernambuco, on the coast.

One further contingency would land him at Para, northwest of Pernambuco, and almost 1,500 miles directly north of Rio de Janeiro, the major objective of the daring pilot who catapulted into space from Glynn Isle, near here, at noon Thursday. Para was his intended landing place if adverse winds and weather forced too rapid consumption of fuel, in the opinion of Paul J. Varner, chairman of the local committee sponsoring the flight.

Adding to the general belief that Redfern will attain at least his secondary objective, Pernambuco, are reports of government meteorologists that he will encounter favorable weather conditions through practically all his trans-equatorial jump, especially over those dubious stretches of the lower Atlantic and the Caribbean Sea.

Many Witnesses Take-Off.

Automobiles lined the sides of the field and as the plane took the air cheers went up from hundreds of spectators. Sir John R. Bland, Colonial secretary, had welcomed the fliers on their arrival and was on hand early to bid them farewell. The fliers had slept well for seven hours and were in excellent condition. They ate a hearty breakfast of bacon and eggs. They wanted no time but drove in an automobile to the field, tuned up their plane, remarked that they were too busy to talk, waved a good-bye and were off for England.

Planned for a Year.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—The hop-off of Edward F. Schlee, Detroit oil man, and William S. Brock, pilot, in their Wright-motored Stinson-Detroit plane in which they hope to better the world's record for circling the globe in 23 days, represents the culmination of plans laid more than a year ago.

"Once we agreed to make the trip last June," Schlee said. "We agreed to buy a ship." Their choice was virtually the same as that of Lindbergh, Chamberlain and Byrd, the Wright motor in a monoplane of conventional design.

Will Fly 23,000 Miles.

Next the route was laid over 22,000 miles of land and water which the aviators hope to span in approximately 240 flying hours. The entire course is covered by agents for the Wayne Oil Company of which Schlee is president, and there will be no lack of proper fuel and mechanical service even though the installation of a new whirlwind motor will be needed at Tokyo.

Schlee and Brock had provided for their take-off with an especially constructed runway, built by the Newfoundland government at Harbor Grace. Their first stop will be Croydon, London. From there they go to Germany, Turkey, Syria, Persia, India, Japan, Honolulu and San Francisco.

Americans Blamed For Money Display.

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—The growing practice of cramming crumpled banknotes into one's pocket has aroused criticism here. Americans are blamed for setting the example.

This apparent contempt for money, says one objector, is becoming too common and the blatantly rich and those who would be thought to "pull out handfuls of bills in which thousands of franc notes are mixed with five franc bills. This grand gesture is often intended as a play to the gallery."

BRITISH ADVERTISERS
"SAY IT WITH WOMEN"

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—"Say it with pretty women" is one of the slogans brought out at the Olympia Advertising Exhibition.

"Put a pretty woman beside your name in the newspapers—whether you make hats and bolts, penknives or motor cars—and you have everybody noticing you, which is the first step toward buying," advertisers say.

To carry out the idea, each of the sixteen national and international advertisers who placed exhibits at the show were represented by a pretty girl.

"Tell the women," the experts explained, "as they are the world's spenders and the ones to whom advertising must be directed. Women spend 80 per cent of the world's money, directly or indirectly. Men make the money but women spend it, therefore talk to the women."

SEEDS WORTH SOWING

Spending money in Kingston is more than merely shopping, for we not only get the things we purchase, but we help to expand the commercial and other interests of the town. Of every dollar spent here, some portion of it goes for taxes that will be of benefit to the whole community.

Thus we see that money spent at home has the double power of supplying us with our wants just as well as we could do elsewhere and of helping to develop the community in which we live. We want larger and better-stocked stores, able to provide us with up-to-date service, and the only way we can get them is to patronize the local merchants whenever it is possible to do so.

The dollars we spend here are the seeds from which will grow this greater garden of prosperity with its benefits for all. They cannot fall on barren ground for Kingston merchants are interested in seeing their city grow and if they receive the proper support from its residents they will be able to make it grow.

The Skull Cap Registers in Reports From Foreign Sources, and Hats Grow Smaller as Summer Nears Its End.

New York—Even the most enthusiastic devotees of the large hat do not expect it to outlast the summer season. Reports from abroad dwell on the popularity of skull caps and of the return to favor of the fitted cloche made fashionable several seasons ago by Descat. The carefully fitted and frequently draped crown offers an item of conversation among milliners. Handmade hats, such as the interesting though extreme Egyptian turban by Reboux shown here, are among the early offerings.

There is an effort to win, if not actually force, women away from the comfort and economy of the felt hat. The new and very smart straw hats Parisiennes have found to their liking this summer have accomplished something toward breaking the habit of wearing felt hats. Even with velvet being banked on, it is in several directions for fall, it is not expected that it will replace felt.

REBOUX USES THE EGYPTIAN TURBAN IDEA IN BLACK SATIN

This is a New Turban by Reboux That Continues the Vogue of the Popular Earlaps. It is Entirely of Black Satin Ribbon with Loops of the Ribbon Laid Down at Each Side.

Several draped oriental turbans have been designed by Reboux, and others, and for these satins, felts, and such things have been used. What trimming appears is placed flat against the hat or over the ears, as is the case in several instances. Novelty features lead themselves nicely to the present military scheme, although ribbons still leads the list of desirable trimmings. French milliners continue to introduce every intricate sort of hand-stitching and applique or inserts on their hats, and felts are variously treated to introduce a note of novelty.

Many of the smartest women both here and abroad are letting their hair grow, this being especially true among the younger set, but it is not expected that this will cause any upset in hat style this season at least.

Net and Modernistic Decoration Identify Chantal Costumes At Paris Fete.

The Beautiful Mlle. Jeanne de Balzac Wore a White Net Dress Embroidered in Varied Bands of Silver and Crystal. The Coat Was of Bright Canary Yellow Velvet, Trimmed With Gray Fox and Lined With Silver.

The Princess Beloselsky-Belozerski Appeared in a Dress of Fine Silver Net and Silver Lace Embroidered with Silver Sequins. Over It as a Wrap Was Posed a Double Cape, the Top One of Printed Chiffon in a Large Floral Pattern in Shades of Green.

EVENING GOWNS RUN THE GAMUT FROM VELVET TO EMBROIDERED NETS—AND THE UNADORNED CREPE SATIN IS CONTRADICTION BY THE SCINTILLATING EMBROIDERED NET.

New York—There is certainly no dearth of fabrics from which to make a selection for the evening gown. From the extremes of velvet and net, there are many compromises, yet why compromise when either of these has so much chic and charm? It now has come to pass that one may refer to charm in connection with modern clothes.

For a time this element seemed lacking. One called clothes "smart," "chic," "stunning," "daring," or almost anything under the sun but charming; but with the lively effort Parisians are putting forth to establish the "more elegance in dress" movement, and with the natural tendency toward more feminine frocks, one feels quite justified in referring to a frock as having charm, that most enviable of all qualities.

The dresses sketched here are illustrative of the elegance of net when effectively embroidered. While Paris is more or less constant in her allegiance to the unfitted crepe satin dress, it must be admitted that she has her nights when the urge for sparkling things must find expression. Chantal, scored with a group of dresses that are nothing if not brilliant and that are typically modern in motif. That each dress had its own particular wrap is not at all surprising, for the ensemble has not diminished in popularity, and is even more important after than before seven.

Velvet gives every promise of being a big factor in everything one wears this fall. It will not be the fault of certain factions if velvet hats do not stage a comeback, for one can not, it would seem, go on wearing felts indefinitely. That there are always new felts, and new features in felt hats has made it possible for them to retain their prestige to this day, and despite opposition, there seems nothing to warrant relegating felts to second place. Parisians Favor Roof Gardens.

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP)—Roof gardens are growing in favor in Paris. For many years the extremely exclusive Automobile Club of France had the fashion all to itself. The garden there is very realistic and there is an irregular fountain that masquerades as a miniature lake. In summer the men for no women ever are admitted—have dinner where they can see Paris all about them. A number of homes lately have been built with flat enclosed roofs much in the Moorish style. The Louvre, the Bank of France and similar large buildings have had their flat roofs transformed by energetic employees.

PRESIDENT HINDENBURG LIKES HUNTING STORIES

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP)—There is one subject that pleases President von Hindenburg more than any other, according to Professor Hugo Vogel, his painter, who recently published a book entitled, "When I Painted Hindenburg."

"Hindenburg is most agreeable when there is a hunting party in the offing," Vogel writes. "He likes to narrate hunting experiences. His eyes then sparkle with joy. Big game is his passion."

Hindenburg's favorite hunting story was told him by an old hunter who visited great army headquarters in October, 1916. The story is that a hunter laid traps for jays high up in a pine tree, only to discover to his utter astonishment the next day that he had caught a big carp instead of a bird. An eagle had caught a carp in a nearby pond. As it was about to fly over the tree, a hunter leveled his gun at the eagle, which in its fright, dropped the carp into the trap.

PLEASING FOODS

Fish, to the table by the direct route from sea, lake or stream is of course the ideal way, but modern methods of preserving make it possible to obtain canned fish and sea foods of all kinds.

A few cans of your favorite variety will add greatly to your comfort when unexpected company drops in. Fish in the can is more expensive but has very little if any waste and the labor of preparation is all done.

Canned fish roe very nearly equals the fresh and is admirably adapted to the making of salads and croquettes. Well seasoned roe, brushed with olive oil and baked with a tomato sauce over it is unusually good.

Roe Salad.—Empty one can of fish roe in a thin cheesecloth bag and drop into boiling water for ten minutes. To prepare the water add a bay leaf, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, three cloves; boil fifteen minutes. When cooked drain and set the roe aside to chill, pouring French dressing over it. Let stand for an hour and serve with watercress.

Baked Sardines.—Drain one dozen fair sized sardines on paper, then dip them into lemon juice and cracker crumbs. Bake in the oven for fifteen minutes. Make a sauce of one cupful of tomato and one onion. Cut and toast some whole wheat bread, spread with butter, then lay on the fish. Cut the bread into strips the width of two fingers. Pour over the hot sauce and serve.

Smoked Salmon on Toast.—Cut strips of salmon into very thin slices and broil delicately. Have ready rounds of toasted bread, buttered, lay on the slices of salmon and garnish with hard cooked eggs. Serve with string beans.

Few know the value of nuts as food; they are highly nutritious. A few of some kind or other should be found in every luncheon basket.

When Clinton Came Back To Kingston

In 1908 The Sun Comparatively Answered the Question That the Ignorant are Asking Again Today: "Who Was George Clinton?"

The following sketch of George Clinton, first governor of New York, who was inaugurated in Kingston July 30, 1777, was published in the New York Sun in 1908 in connection with the ceremonies attending the re-interment of Clinton's body in the first Reformed Church Yard in this city:

"Who was George Clinton?" The old-time New Yorker might as well ask, "Who was George Washington?" But the man in the street—and there's a Clinton street in every good-sized town in this State and a Clinton town in six or eight other States, as well—the man in the street asks, "Who was George Clinton?"

Crowds will ask the question next Thursday, when the body of the first Governor of New York State is brought from Washington after ninety-six years, here to rest during the working hours of one busy day at our City Hall, on its deferred last journey before Memorial Day to the home of the State's first Governor at Kingston, N. Y. Two Governors Clinton between them summed up a great part of the State's history during its first fifty years.

Clinton was a County Longfellow, Ireland's youngest son, born here, courageously on land that is now included in Orange county, N. Y. Here the father, the Irish native, died at the good old age of 83 years just before the American independence. That father's grandfather, William Clinton, was an Englishman, a former adherent of Charles I. who fled to Ireland when the Stuarts fell. On the other side of the house, the American ancestor's maternal grandfather was a captain in Cromwell's army.

From Ireland, Charles Clinton, with a party of relatives and friends, chartered a ship and sailed for Philadelphia on May 20, 1729. The captain formed a plan to starve the passengers, either with a view to obtaining their property or to deter emigration. After the death of many among whom were a son and a daughter of Charles Clinton, they were finally allowed to land on Cape Cod on Oct. 4, 1729, having paid a large sum for their lives.

As early as the spring of 1731, this party settled in the then upper part of Ulster county on lands now lying in Orange county, six miles west of Newburgh and sixty miles north of New York. There Charles Clinton lived his life of farmer and land surveyor. The surveyor's talent was to crop out two generations later in grandson De Witt Clinton, who was a peace and justice county judge. He was also lieutenant-colonel of the Ulster county militia.

In the second generation of Clintons the military strain cropped out again, as well as the scientific side of the old farmer-surveyor's heritage. While Charles's eldest son, Alexander, graduated at Princeton in 1750, became a physician and friend of peace, the second son, Charles, Jr., was a surgeon with the army that took Havana in 1762. The third son, James, was a soldier. "Provided by his father with an excellent education," as the records tell, "his ruling inclination was for military life." He was appointed ensign in the 2d Ulster militia and became its lieutenant-colonel before the Revolution. In the war of 1755, between the English and French, he distinguished himself not only at Fort Frontenac, but also in capturing a French garrison of war on Lake Ontario.

With Gen. George Clinton, the fourth son of settler Charles, this Brig.-Gen. James Clinton gave distinguished service in the Revolution. James had been appointed Colonel of the 3d New York in 1775, and won his generalship in the following year when he also accompanied Montgomery to Quebec. The brothers Clinton were jointly in command on the Hudson at the time of the attacks in October, 1777, of the opposing forces under Sir Henry Clinton. The woods were full of Clintons. After gallant defence by 600 militia, 3,000 British troops, the Highlanders fell. Gen. James Clinton was the last man to leave Fort Clinton, receiving a bayonet wound, but he escaped by riding a short distance, sliding down a precipice to the creek below, and so got away into Bear Mountain wilderness, just across from Anthony's Nose.

Gen. James Clinton again in 1779, with 1,600 men, joined the expedition of Gen. Sullivan against the Indians. He had proceeded upon the Mohawk and thus to the head of Otsego Lake, when he made another famous escape, this time by a trick on the natural resources of water power. The incident is curious in the light of subsequent associations of his brother and his son with the waterways of the State. Forced to quit Otsego Lake, James Clinton succeeded in floating his bateau on the shallow outlet by damming up the lake and then letting out the water suddenly. This Gen. Clinton commanded at Albany during most of the war, but was present in the siege of Yorktown and at the British evacuation of New York. His exploit in Otsego Lake may have suggested to James Fenimore Cooper, in the novel of "Deerslayer," the famous passage of an enormous barge at the lake mouth which Mark Twain in his "Literary Essays" seriously declares to be "impossible."

George Clinton, the old County Longfellow man's youngest son, was the first Clinton to write his name down in our young nation's history as a statesman. His span of life was 1729 to 1812. As a youth, he was off on a privateering cruise in 1758. Returning from that adventure, he accompanied his father and brother as a lieutenant in the expedition against Fort Frontenac. On the debanding of the Colonial forces, he was put to the study of law in the law office of William Smith, and settled down to practice in Little Britain, the town of his birth. To politics he was early turned by the chance occurrence of receiving a clerkship from the British Colonial Governor of New York, a remote relative of his family in the old world, and as it further happened, a man of the same given name, Admiral George Clinton, was that Colonial Governor. The Admiral George was father of that Sir Henry Clinton, the British General, against whom fate was to oppose the brothers, James and George, in the famous affair of the Highland forts.

The young American George Clinton was a natural-born Home Ruler. He was elected, as a young man, in 1768, to the New York Colonial Assembly. There, as his biographers tell, he so resolutely maintained the cause of the Colonies against the Crown that in 1775 he was among those elected by the New York provincial convention to go as delegates to the second Continental Congress. The New York provincial congress had not instructed their delegates how to act on the question of independence, and when that issue was raised, Clinton and the others did not vote on it. A new provincial congress, meanwhile, on July 9, 1776, at White Plains, passed unanimous resolutions approving the Declaration of Independence. Again George Clinton was prevented from signing the Declaration. Before the New York delegates did so, he received an imperative call from Washington to take a military command as general of militia in the Highlands.

When the first state constitution was framed in 1777, Clinton was a deputy to the provincial congress which enacted it, but was again called away to the field of battle by the national Congress, with an appointment as brigadier-general in the Continental Army. Assisted by his brother next older, Gen. James Clinton, he made the brilliant but unsuccessful defence of the Highland forts already mentioned. Nor did this end the military side of his career. From the period of his first occupation of the gubernatorial chair until his final relinquishment of it, he exhibited great energy of character, and in defence of the state, he rendered important services both in civil and military capacity.

He was chosen first Governor of the State of New York on April 20, 1777; was re-elected to the office in 1780, and retained it by successive elections until he lost to Jay on a "Hayes-Tilden" issue in 1795. He was the first fighting Governor. In 1780 he faced the expedition of Cornwallis, Brant and Sir John Johnson and saved the Mohawk Valley settlers "from the horrors of the torch and the scalping knife," to quote the historians of Indian warfare. He was wide awake when New England Yankees thought to encroach on the territory of New York as settlers on the "New Hampshire grants." With Timothy Pickens he concluded the lasting treaties of peace with the Western Indians. He marched into Massachusetts in 1787, at the head of his own militia, and "by his promptness greatly aided" the Governor of that Commonwealth in suppressing the disorders at Springfield, Amherst and the Pelham hills, in the famous Shay's Rebellion.

Gov. George Clinton first conceived the project of canals connecting the navigable waters of the state, which was to be realized a generation later by his nephew. He had accompanied Generals Washington and Hamilton on a tour of the northern and western outposts of the state, even visiting, with Schuyler as guide, the High Rock spring at Saratoga. On this trip Clinton evolved the notion of a canal between Wood Creek and the Mohawk. He recommended it to the Legislature. In his speech, the custom of that day in place of written message, when he opened the session of 1791. It was, however, Governor DeWitt Clinton who later carried the uncle's scheme to completion in the Erie and Champlain canals.

In national affairs it was characteristic of Gov. George Clinton that when presiding in 1788 over the State convention to ratify the Federal Constitution, he resolutely opposed the adoption of that historic document. His reason is not without interest today. As one less sympathetic among Clinton's critics put it, "he opposed the Constitution, hoping to make New York the most powerful of thirteen separate commonwealths." The Anti-Burrites would know what that meant. Another reasoned more patriotically from Clinton's action on the Constitution, "which instrument he disapproved because it gave too much power to the central Government." His own words affirm this view. He believed, he said, that by this Constitution "too much power would pass to the Federal Congress and the Executive."

At this country's first Presidential election George Clinton received three of the electoral votes for Vice-President, cast by the electors of that day in their own independent method of voting, a plan greatly modified by custom in the Electoral College of recent years. When Washington was re-elected, in 1792, Clinton received fifty votes for Vice-President. He once, in 1803, received six ballots from the New York delegation for the Presidency itself. He meanwhile State politics had taken on new aspects. In 1800 he had a fight for it to make a seat in the Legislature. It was "after one of the most hotly contested elections in the history of the State," as the mild historian expresses it, that Clinton held on, and in 1801 he was again Governor.

As Vice-President of the United States, Clinton was first elected in 1804 and he filled that office until his death at Washington in 1812. His last important public act was again characteristic. By his casting vote in the Senate in 1811, he decided in the negative a vote on the question of renewing the charter of the United States Bank. Another act of George Clinton's will even more widely concern the people of his own State to the end of time. He took great interest in education, was not only a "friend of literature," in the old grandiloquent phrase, but a prime mover for public schools. In his message opening the State Legislature of 1795 he initiated the movement for the organization of a common school system.

Portraits of George Clinton show a man of full figure and a countenance not unlike Washington Irving's Samuel Adams. He had particularly large, keen eyes. His hair, parted at the middle, fell away in

Norris a Born Rebel; Stuns Party Regulars

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska may enter the presidential lists under the Progressive banner, or may be drafted by the G. O. P. He's a rabid insurgent, and has even worked to defeat members of his own party.

(International Illustrated News)

This is another in the series of close-ups of presidential possibilities, written by Fred L. Lindelton, Washington correspondent for the International Illustrated News. In these articles Mr. Lindelton discusses personalities rather than politics.

By FRED L. LINDELTON

International Illustrated New Staff Correspondent

Party regularity doesn't mean a thing to Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. Norris is registered as a Republican. But he's Republican in name only.

Norris's sense of decency was outraged when he learned of the spending of millions in the Pennsylvania Senatorial primaries last year. Whereupon he made all the "regulars" shudder when he invaded the Keystone State and fought like the dickens to elect a Democrat.

There's some talk that Norris may head a Progressive ticket. Others opine that, if the presidential nominations were offered him by the G. O. P., the prize would be the rebel band of Senators. And that way.

Norris stands apart from all the other Washingtonians. He is emphatically not a "mixer." He isn't a White House pet. He never engages in social life. He stays by himself.

He believes in that rather eloquent motto: "Be yourself." He does just as he pleases. It wouldn't surprise anybody if he took the notion to stomp the country for Al Smith.

Norris inherited the toga of Sen-

curls at the sides, and his linen stock, ruffled shirt and heavy rolled coat collar were of the fashion of the time. "As a military man, bold and courageous; as a civil magistrate, a staunch friend of social order, and in private life, affectionate, winning, though dignified in manner, strong in his dislikes, and warm in his friendships," is one summary of his character. "The vast influence he wielded was due more to sound judgment, marvellous energy and great moral force of character than to any especially high-sounding or brilliant achievements."

Aaron Burr, who first introduced the "machine" into politics in New York city, was the manager who introduced not only the Clintons, but also the Livingstons, their old rivals, to accept places on his state ticket in the election of 1800. The Legislature of that year was to choose the national electors, by whom Burr was made Vice-President under Jefferson in 1801. George Clinton got his governorship back, but young DeWitt Clinton was entering upon a share in the management of their party and he freely charged the "Burrites" with treachery. "The Administration, in its inevitable conflict with Burr, bestowed its patronage exclusively upon the Clintons and the Livingstons."

The "Burrites," falling in an alliance with the Federalists, went down and out. According to one authority in political science, the "unscrupulous and even savage" introduction in 1801, by Clintons and Livingstons, of the idea that "to the victors belong the spoils" ever thereafter corrupted New York politics, and, after 1829, corrupted national politics also. It seemed difficult to that authority to resist the conviction that the origin of the "spoils system" was really due to the rising ambition of DeWitt Clinton, then a future governor and builder of canals.

The "spoils system" was less grievous to the people of that time than was another result of Burr's scheme to get the state for himself. This was its savage sequel of duels. While the Burr-Hamilton affair became a national disaster, the most vindictive fight was that between Burr's friend Col. Swartwout and DeWitt Clinton. The Colonel, twice wounded, insisted on having a sixth shot fired.

Governor DeWitt Clinton, of the third generation on American soil, held for twenty years after his uncle the controlling power in New York. At one or two-and-thirty, he sought a United States Senatorship out of the Burr mixup. Twelve years up to 1815, he was appointed Mayor of New York by the State "council of appointment," of which he was one. Candidate in 1812 for the Presidency, he was defeated by Madison.

DeWitt Clinton lost even State office then. He got back by a memorial to the Legislature proposing the Erie, Champlain and Hudson canals. He was made commissioner to survey a route. Elected Governor on this issue in 1816, he was re-elected in 1819 and 1824, as well as in 1826, after the Erie Canal was completed. In the triumphal barge that conveyed the second Governor Clinton from Lake Erie to the sea and reached New York amid a popular demonstration on October 25, 1825, there will be found perhaps a faint analogy to next week's event. Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today after an opening period of strength in which several of the pivotal industries, including General Motors, General Electric and U. S. Steel common attained record high prices. A renewed selling attack against the oil shares in the last hour which sent the Pan-American issues to their lowest levels since 1924, started the selling movement.

Buying of General Motors "old" and "new" issues was stimulated for a time by the publication of a newspaper interview with John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee, who predicted the continuation of good business, and a turn for the better in the motor industry. The old stock sold at above 250 and the new as high as 126½ before realizing sales cut down their gains.

In the railroad list, a break of nine points in Delaware and Hudson was the chief development. Publication of relatively poor July earnings statements by the Atchafalaya, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads had a depressing effect on speculation in the railroad group.

Outside of the oil shares, selling pressure in the industrial group was most effective against some of the high-priced specialties, Baldwin Locomotive and Houston being the first to yield. Pierce Arrow common sank to a new low.

The closing was heavy. Total sales approximated a million shares.

YOU CAN—AND WILL

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

DON'T listen when people tell you "It simply can't be done." For somebody's bound to do it. And YOU may be just that one.

There's nothing that man has thought of. But what some man can do—And there's no earthly reason why that man isn't YOU.

When folks say—"No use trying!" Just keep right on with a smile. You won't need to do much talking. You'll show them after awhile.

There's nothing worth the having. That's going to be easy to get. And whatever you strive for hardest Gives you the most joy yet.

It can be done—and it will be!—If it's ever been done, that's true. And greater things wait for some one To be the first to do.

Somebody's going to do them; Some one who really tries. Who believes in himself and his power. To win the highest prize.

And YOU can be just that some one. For the best is waiting still. And there's nothing you can't accomplish. When you say—"I CAN—AND WILL!"

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Montague Glass Tried to Be a Lawyer.

AT ABOUT this time I was in a law office and while there, because I had a boss who made frequent visits to a resort downtown, I had the leisure to write a story called "Papa-gallo."

"Papa-gallo" cost me, and the law firm between us, several dollars in postage stamps and at last I disposed of it to a Canadian paper for a trifle less than the law firm and I spent on it. It was a fairly bad story, written after the manner of Edgar Allan Poe, with just a suggestion of Barrie.

Many years later I reprinted it in a magazine called "1910," a purely artistic effort fostered by Charles B. Falles. It had no editor and no publisher, only contributors who agreed to furnish a story, an article or a picture each month during the year 1910 and $10 towards the cost of printing the magazine. In May, 1910, I went to Italy and never definitely knew what became of "1910," which ceased publication while I was abroad, but I think I can tell what happened to it. It died of a story called "Papa-gallo."

TODAY—Montague Glass, as the creator of those national characters, "Potash and Perlmutter" is too well known to require an introduction from anyone. Potash and Perlmutter have been put into every conceivable form using words or action as a medium; in books, magazines, articles, dialogues, plays and "movies." Had he written nothing else, or intended to write nothing else in the future, Glass' bank account would be assured.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

FOUR-LEAVED CLOVER

WHO is there that finding a four-leaved clover, does not regard it as an omen of good luck? Few people, if any. Some may poo-poo the idea and laugh scornfully thereat; but, nestled away down in the bottom of their hearts is a secret satisfaction over their "find."

In this we are but harking back to our sun-worshipping ancestors. Clover was one of the plants of magic power gathered at the summer solstice from European fields in the dim past, because at the summer solstice the sun, giver of life, having reached his greatest power, certain plants caught from him mystic properties which made them potent for baffling the evil things which threaten the life of man. Now if an ordinary clover caught something of the sun's mystic properties a four-leaved clover—which was unusual and therefore must mean something—was especially marked out as having caught an extra share.

In the Tyrol and in some parts of France the idea that the four-leaved clover, in order to be potent for luck, must be picked on midsummer eve, still persists; but English-speaking peoples have dropped that part of the superstition and regard it as an omen of good luck when found at any time. Naturally such a specially endowed plant was long considered as an infallible protection against witches.

If artificial oxygen is supplied, the height limit to which aviators can fly is 40,000 to 45,000 feet.

Distance Lure

I have heard it said of a great painting, "Don't go too close to it." In order to get the best out of a picture view it in the proper light and from a distance. If you get too close to look you will realize the rough way in which it is made. "I prefer (now) to also view women from a distance; never closer than four or five feet."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Youths Have a Narrow Escape

Earl Terwilliger and Francis Fitzgerald two Greenfield youths, had a very thrilling experience last Tuesday. While traveling down the Greenfield road toward the village of Ellenville their Ford car skidded when they applied the brakes too quickly.

A Buick four-wheel brake car ahead was slowed down suddenly and the two youths in order to avoid a collision applied their brakes with force. Their car skidded and after turning around several times crashed through the fence and turning over several times landed in the Beerkill stream with the two youths underneath. They had been traveling along at a "good clip" when the accident happened. Passengers in the Buick notified Troopers and the two youths were fished out unhurt. Terwilliger was arrested by the Troopers on a charge of reckless driving and fined $10. He drives for Rabbi Magarik of Greenfield to whom the wrecked car belonged.

C. E. Conference Here in October

There has been received by officers of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union copies of the state paper, "The Empire State Endeavorer," for this month in which there appears under the heading, "Kingston Awaits You" the following:

Kingston, one of the most beautiful of New York state cities, blossoming river scenery with the beauty of the Catskill Mountains, will be the scene of the city and county officers conference, which will be held Saturday and Sunday, October 29-30. For eight years, these conferences have met in Syracuse. Now in response to an enthusiastic invitation from Ulster county, the State Union concluded to move southward and eastward for this fall's meeting.

The city and county union officers conference has become one of the most valuable items in the program of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union. The pilgrimage of county and city leaders from all the corners of the state to attend this intensive two days session has been a remarkable witness to the sense of responsibility possessed by our C. E. Union officers.

There has been nothing spectacular about these conferences, yet leaders who became aware of the worth of program and the fine fellowship of the few hours together have not been content to remain absent. It is expected that because of the nearness to the large centers this year's attendance will eclipse that of all other years, and that Kingston will have an opportunity to show its hospitality.

The Endeavorers of Ulster county are looking forward to these meetings with a great deal of interest and plans are being made to make the gathering a most successful one. The local committee cooperating with the state organization in every way possible.

Benedictine's Silver Jubilee

To Be Celebrated Last Week of September or First Week in October—To Make Plans Monday Night at Nether's Home.

The Benedictine Hospital will have completed 25 years of service to this community in September and plans for the celebration of the silver jubilee will be discussed at a meeting to be held in the nurses' home, Mary's avenue, Monday night at 8 o'clock. All the priests and ministers as well as representatives of all organizations in this city have been invited to attend the meeting to assist in making plans for the proper commemoration of the event.

The Very Rev. Joseph B. Scully, president of the Benedictine Hospital, will preside at the meeting. He has put forth every effort to promote the welfare of the hospital and with the nuns has done much to place the institution among the leading hospitals in New York state. It is hoped that the meeting of Monday night will be largely attended in order that immediate action may be taken to prepare for the celebration of the silver jubilee to be held either the last week in September or the first week in October.

Speculator, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—Gene Tunney's next sparring session has been set for tomorrow afternoon. The champion planned to get away for the races at Saratoga Springs today, taking his entire routine with him.

Confident of his physical fitness, Gene seems to regard his fight with Jack Dempsey lightly. He did not take up his gloves yesterday, but after eight miles on the road in the morning he led the way for several of his guests in the afternoon on a 14-mile hike.

Last Dance At Crosspatch

Crosspatch Community Center will have the last dance of the season on Saturday evening before Labor Day, that is September 3.

This date was chosen rather than the holiday itself because Labor Day is a day for so many who have been enjoying the summer in the park.

The party which was given about three weeks ago was supposed to be the last, but everybody had such a good time, that they urged "just one more" before Mrs. Cross goes back to New York.

The advice about being sure to bring the ladies was needed, that time and it is hoped that the ladies will see that they are all there at the coming festivities next Saturday evening.

One of the young men from over the mountain who was unable to come last time consoled himself by saying: "Well, I bet there wasn't any girls there." When told of the crowd of pretty girls, he allowed that he knew one or two himself and he guessed he'd bring them this time. As he is very good looking he is likely to do what he says.

The city folks are practicing the square dances but they realize it is hard to outdo the people who live in the country the year round and begin to dance almost as soon as they can walk.

Recently several people who had formerly lived in Crosspatch house, have visited there. Among them was Thomas Woodruff of Brooklyn—now 71 years old. More than 50 years ago he used to spend his summers at Crosspatch which was then the staples residence. He said he often slept in the secret attic and took a fearful joy in thinking of the children raids and imagining himself tucked away there, while the men were out on the hills fighting the Indians off.

To be sure, the secret attic was in a log building in the very early days, but it was on the same site where the present building stands, so that was good enough for youthful dreaming.

Mr. Woodruff said the brook in front of the house looked just the same and many a time he had caught the speckled trout from the brook for dinner and gathered blackberries on the bank for dessert. He seemed to take great delight in recalling all the old landmarks and was so pleased that Mrs. Cross is striving to restore the house as it was in early days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fearo, of Saugerties, came up to Crosspatch recently and asked if they might eat their lunch on a big flat stone in the maple grove near the house. Mrs. Fearo had lived at Crosspatch when her father, Larry Mosher, owned the place. The secret attic was her beloved place. She made her dolls on a rainy day and she suggested that a children's party up there some day would give great joy. Very likely it would, for the children of the neighborhood are always asking Mrs. Cross if they may go up there to play "by themselves."

Mrs. Fearo said the yellow Harrison roses, the Danish and the Prairie rose were always where they are now, but there was a "black rose," which has disappeared. It was probably a deep crimson, which looked almost black. Mrs. Cross remembers seeing one of that kind on Staten Island, near New York city and hopes to get a root for Crosspatch.

Almost every day sees several visitors at Crosspatch. Some are the regular neighbors. Others come from a distance. The scenic road to Willow is a favorite drive for those who love beauty and it is not much further up to Crosspatch with its gay flower garden and tall trees and murmuring brook.

Tea is always in order before visitors leave. A honey sandwich with mint is one of the guest specialties at Crosspatch. Thin sliced bread is buttered and spread with white clover honey sprinkled with chopped mint leaves. The two slices are pressed together, cut into triangles and garnished with the lovely lavender-colored mint flowers from the big patch beyond the gate.

Another tea dainty is a buttered toast spread with Astrachan apple jelly and deluged with rich cream.

At a bridge party recently, Mrs. Cross served an English cream cake, frosted and cut in squares with a nasturtium flower on each square. It was not obligatory to eat the flower, but some of the guests did.

Crosspatch Community Center has this summer approached its ideal of being a center for neighborly good feeling and jolly good times. Mrs. Cross, who has been at the house since early May, will leave directly after Labor Day for New York city and very likely will not be up again until the Christmas party.

The Week in Wall Street

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Wall street was somewhat mystified this week by the spectacular advance in stock prices, particularly of some of the leading industrials. In the face of a large quota of unfavorable trade news. The advance, while by no means uniform, lifted the average of 20 leading industrials to a record high level for all time, and sent nearly a hundred individual stocks to their highest levels of the year, or longer.

Money rates continued easy, with a plentiful supply of funds available on call at 3 1/2 per cent, the official rate, which was shaded in the "outside market." Some surprise was shown by the drop of more than $20,000,000 in brokers' loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

U. S. Steel common sold at the highest price since the declaration of the 40 per cent stock dividend, although the weekly steel trade reviews reported no change in the general situation. And, predictions were made of another drop in the August unfilled orders of the corporation. Bethlehem Steel which reported an increase in mill operations, rose to a new high level on buying influenced by the prospect of an early resumption of dividends.

Independent steels were sluggish. A sensational advance in the old stock of General Motors Corporation carried it to a record high level around $250 a share, while the new "when issued" shares sold above $35. Chrysler and Nash also reached new high ground, but the other motors failed to do much. Government statistics on automobile production showed a sharp falling off in July compared with the same month last year.

Oil again turned reactionary on selling inspired by the Pennsylvania and Pankhandis crude oil price cuts, and fears for the safety of the $6 dividends on the Pan-American issues. Scattered selling also developed in a number of specialties but this failed to check the bullish tactics of pools, who apparently were plentifully supplied with funds. In view of the absence of any widespread public participation, the source of the buying in many issues was somewhat of a mystery. "Inside selling" was reported in General Motors and some of the other pivotal industrials, and yet all offerings were readily absorbed, and the prices marked up to new high levels.

The list of individual highs included such diversified issues as American Bank Note, Bon Ami, Utah Copper, Mackay Companies, Davison Chemical, Mullins Body, General Electric, S. H. Kress, American Power and Light, Texas Gulf Sulphur and General American Tank.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception Friday evening was the best in several days. Not only were local stations clear, but there was considerable reception from distant places. WBAL at Baltimore was excellent and did not spread. This station was for a long time the champion spreader, but since the June readjustment has been right on the mark. WLS, WEBB, WTAM and WOC were heard from the west. CFCF from Montreal and WJAX from the south. WAUG at Columbus, Ohio, reappeared after a long silence and even KDKA was clear.

WGY continues its experiments without detriment to other stations and with some benefit to itself. The snarl it always gets into at such times seems to have been cleared up and the tone is once more clear.

Bus Loosens a Wheel.

Thursday afternoon about 5:40 o'clock as the Kingston-Osawatomie passenger bus was coming down from Osawatomie it threw a right front wheel near the Plank Road Inn. The driver, Leslie Sanford of this city, prevented a crash and a woman passenger was severely shaken up, but when taken to the Kingston City Hospital no broken bones were found.

Motor Touring Service Extended

Lost Gaps in A. A. A. Touring Service Filled by New Affiliations—Organization Serves Vastly Larger Host of Motor Wayfarers During Current Season.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Broadening of the advantages which the motor club offers to the tourists has resulted this year in more motorists than ever before asking for and receiving information to guide them in their travels, according to a compilation of reports from member clubs by the American Automobile Association. In this tremendous demand for this type of service is seen the materialization of the hopes of those who have worked so that the automobile owner may travel the country over and receive everywhere the necessary directions and services which expedite his touring and enhance his pleasures.

In making the announcement that the national touring body and its affiliated clubs have served 1,700,000 automobile travelers so far this year, the A. A. A. pointed to the progress in touring facilities represented by the continued addition of affiliated bodies throughout the country. Only by extending the opportunities for informational and other touring service can motoring be made as pleasurable as the extension of road building programs makes possible. A. A. A. officials declare.

2,500,000 Tourists Routed.

According to figures compiled by the national touring bureau of the American Automobile Association, 2,500,000 tourists will have been routed by motor clubs by the end of this year. The demand for touring service and the ability to supply it indicated by these figures, it is pointed out, is in direct contrast to conditions existing ten years ago when so many individual motor clubs floundered independently and vainly attempted to give service whose value is greatest when it is available throughout the nation.

It is the aim of the national touring body to expand and extend continuously their touring service in all parts of the United States and to maintain it on an ever broadening scale abroad through cooperative association with European motor clubs. This widening of helpful functioning in behalf of the tourist has been accomplished by further affiliations in this country of which the most significant, it is stated, is the recent alliance of the National Automobile Association of New England with the American Automobile Association. The amalgamation of the N. A. A. with the national touring federation was declared comparable only to the merging two years ago of the National Motorists Association with the A. A. A.

Continuous Line of Travel.

With all parts of the United States joined to form one great touring ground throughout which may be found agencies prepared to offer a uniform type of service such as the American Automobile Association has developed, it is stated, the motorist of today is assured of a continuous line of travel with touring agencies located at regular intervals to administer to his every need. The comparison is made to the development of highway building which has progressed to the point where gaps in the main thoroughfares have been filled in by constant extension of the finer types of roadway.

So has uniform motoring service been spread, the A. A. A. announcement asserts, until the missing portions of this Nation-wide chain of this constant administering to the needs of motordom have been filled in by affiliations in all sections. By virtue of his membership in the American Automobile Association or one of its affiliated clubs, it is pointed out, a motorist thus may obtain information, emergency road service and even himself of the numerous other means the A. A. A. places at his disposal to enhance the convenience and pleasure of touring—and all this in a setting where he is a complete stranger.

European Affiliation.

Not is this availability of service confined only to the United States. As an American member of the International Touring Alliance, the American Automobile Association has effected affiliation with twenty-three European touring clubs, and so far this year through its foreign department has assisted double the number of Americans who last year took their cars with them abroad.

This universality of motoring service, the A. A. A. declares, solves the problems of touring whether they are encountered at home or abroad. Nowhere does the A. A. A. member need to feel strange or without friendly and effective aid. He needs only to present his credentials in the national motoring federation and its Nation-wide and international benefits immediately are placed at his disposal.

CUP PRESENTED TO SHERIFF
RICE IS ON EXHIBITION

There is on exhibition in one of the display windows of the jewelry store of Oppenheimer Bros., 578 Broadway, a silver loving cup which attracts considerable merited attention from those who have viewed it. The cup stands about two feet high being surmounted by three crossed baseball bats, erect, with a silver baseball at the top. It was presented to Arthur Rice, present sheriff of Ulster county, by former teammates of Mr. Rice on the Robin Hoods on Saturday night, August 20, at a banquet held at the Town Hall, Hyde Park, at which he was the guest of honor.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Rice was third baseman on the Robin Hoods and on August 20, 1902, the Robin Hoods defeated the Saugerties team representing Ulster county by a score of 10 to 9, in a most thrilling game. In order to celebrate the event the surviving members of the Robin Hoods and members of the old Saugerties team gave the banquet and Sheriff Rice was honored. On one side of the bowl of the cup is engraved "Presented to Sheriff A. Rice by the Hyde Park Robin Hood Baseball Club, 1902, while on the other side are inscribed the names of all his other teammates.

In a long hitting contest the West Shore Railroad defeated Schillings, 13-6, Friday evening at the Athletic Field. Snyder and Connelly led the hitters with three hits apiece. One of Snyder's going for a triple. Both teams played good ball on the defense.

Ken Williams pitched for Schillings and was found for twelve hits. Bush opposed him and allowed nine hits.

Brooklyn Royals Blank Colonials

The Colonial Baseball team has seemed to have lost its punch with the willow in recent games. The latest performance of Friday evening in which they were not able to get two safeties in the game with the Brooklyn Royal Giants at the Fair Grounds, topped off the slump. The Colonials were blanked while the Giants made five runs.

Flournoy, a southpaw, opposed Art Smith on the mound. The colored pitcher was too much for the local hitters. Smith was found for thirteen safeties.

Sunday afternoon at the Kingston Fair Grounds the Colonials will play two games. The Ellenville club will be the attraction in the opening contest which is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock. The second game which will follow will be between the Culloton-Robins club and "Chief" Mueller's Poughkeepsie nine.

LOCAL KNIGHTS TO PLAY AT ROSCOE.

The Knights of Columbus Baseball club will travel on Sunday to Roscoe, Sullivan county to meet the team representing that place. Little is known here of the strength of the Roscoe Nine, but the Knights expect a stiff struggle. Volker will undoubtedly hurl for the Knights.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press).

The St. Louis Cards were in second place today among the National League pennant aspirants. Pittsburgh, running into the Boston Braves, may have no respect whatever for baseball leaders, lost by a score of 6-1. The Cards gained ground by adding, their opening clash with the New York Giants being rained out.

Yesterday's victory was the ninth the Braves have scored over the Pirates in 16 games. Vic Aldridge lasted only one third of the first inning for the Pirates. Miljus replaced him.

Chicago's Cubs remained three and one-half games ahead of the field, although they did not play yesterday.

"Buzz" McWeeny tamed the Cincinnati Reds, the Brooklyn Dodgers winning by a 4-3 score. Hollins, Brooklyn catcher, made four hits in as many trips to the plate. Red Lucas was touched for ten safe hits and Cincinnati turned in three errors behind him.

The Yanks turned back the Tigers for the third time in succession, the count being 5-6. Ruth made a double and a triple and Gehrig a double, but there was no activity in the home-run battle between the swatting sultans. New York today was 15½ games ahead of Detroit.

Washington lost its tenth game in a row, Cleveland beating out the Senators gain, 8-7. Horace Ligenbec, ace of the Washington pitching staff, was off form. Braxton, Manager Huggins' latest find, Moore, ranked third in the number of games, while Ruth that day had 40 and Gehrig 39.

Dutch Reuther and Waite Hoyt, who have dominated the American League pitching list for some time, were joined today by Wiley Moore, Manager Huggins' latest find, Moore, ranked third in the number of games, while Ruth that day had 40 and Gehrig 39.

George Sisler, still hovering just below the first ten in batting honors, continues in front in base stealing. His weekly theft raising his total now to 24.

Leading hitters of the American League are: Heilmann, Detroit, .400; Simmons, Philadelphia, .394; Gehrig, New York, .373; Ruth, New York, .357; Speaker, Washington, .348; Fothergill, Detroit, .348; Meusel, New York, .347; Schang, St. Louis, .347; Cobb, Philadelphia, .346; Gossin, Washington, .341.

Pittsburgh Has Monopoly.

Having failed to crack the Pittsburgh monopoly of National League batting honors, Frankie Frisch dropped back to give his rival, Rogers Hornsby, a chance. Hornsby today is but one point back of Clyde Barnhart, the low man of the three Pirates at the top of the column, while Frisch dropped six points to fifth place.

Brother Lloyd Waner, growing more accustomed to the atmosphere up around the top, moved up from eighth place to sixth in the list of the first ten, so it may not be long until the "three musketeers" become a quartet. Lloyd is only twelve points back of Barnhart.

Three in one day shot Hack Wilson's home run record up on a par with the 23 mark set by Cy Williams some time back, and since unchanged. Hornsby has gathered two this week in his drive to recapture the National League batting crown he wore for six straight years. Rogers now has 22 homers.

His slump at bat gave Frisch fewer opportunities for base stealing, but his total of 33 is still nine better than Hendrick of Brooklyn. Kiki Cuyler, who used to hold the base stealing honors, is now third with a mere 19.

Lee "Specs" Meadows is back in first place among the National League pitchers, but his partner, Carmen Hill, is down in sixth rank. Benton, of the Giants, got bumped in his start this week, and dropped back to second. The Cardinal Veterans, Jess Haines and Grover Alexander, come next, but Charlie Root, of the faltering Cubs, tops them all in victories with 22.

With half of the first ten hitters in the league wearing Pirate uniforms, it is no wonder that Pittsburgh has the best team batting mark in the majors today, .309. Even the slugger Yankees are four points below this, while the league leading Cubs are hitting only fourth in the team figures, with .282.

Leading National League batters: P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .354; Harris, Pittsburgh, .363; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, .353; Hornsby, New York, .352; Frisch, St. Louis, .347; Stephenson, Chicago, .343; L. Waner, Pittsburgh, .341; Harper, New York, .338; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .311; Hendrick, Brooklyn, .329.

Leading hitters of the American League are: Heilmann, Detroit, .400; Simmons, Philadelphia, .394; Gehrig, New York, .373; Ruth, New York, .357; Speaker, Washington, .348; Fothergill, Detroit, .348; Meusel, New York, .347; Schang, St. Louis, .347; Cobb, Philadelphia, .346; Gossin, Washington, .341.

Pittsburgh Has Monopoly.

Having failed to crack the Pittsburgh monopoly of National League batting honors, Frankie Frisch dropped back to give his rival, Rogers Hornsby, a chance. Hornsby today is but one point back of Clyde Barnhart, the low man of the three Pirates at the top of the column, while Frisch dropped six points to fifth place.

Brother Lloyd Waner, growing more accustomed to the atmosphere up around the top, moved up from eighth place to sixth in the list of the first ten, so it may not be long until the "three musketeers" become a quartet. Lloyd is only twelve points back of Barnhart.

Roadside Market Business Booms

Motorists Will Buy Direct From Farmers' Produce Worth $100,000,000 During 1927—Survey Shows Tremendous Growth of Roadside Marketing.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Roadside markets have done a roaring business during this touring season and a conservative estimate places at $100,000,000 the produce that motorists will buy direct from the farmers in 1927.

This estimate is based on reports from road cars of the A. A. A. and from many of the individual clubs of the national motor federation. Reports disclose that while roadside marketing has received more intensive development in some states than in others, the growth of the movement is essentially on a national scale.

"This is an aspect of the national business created by motoring that is assuming major importance," Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, declared. "At the present rate of growth it should become a half-billion dollar business within a few years."

Mr. Henry called attention to the fact that in order for the farmer and his cash customers, the motorists from the city, to reap the full benefit from the facilities afforded by the roadside market, certain abuses had to be eliminated. He said:

"The farmers, as far as our reports indicate, deal honestly with their clients and it is not their fault if dishonest traders from the city rent corners at country cross-roads and sell to unsuspecting motorists produce purchased in city markets, and at much higher prices than that produce could command in the city. This is still going on but it can easily be eliminated if all the states follow the example of states such as New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and others, in which roadside marketing associations have been set up. These organizations will not only increase business but they will be able to eliminate the dishonest trader."

The A. A. A. executive believes that roadside trading has done much in the past few years to modify the lingering antagonism of the farmers toward the city motorists. There is still, however, he says, room for improvement in their relations.

"No class of property owners," he said, "is more jealous of the rights of property and the sanctity inherent in such rights than the American farmer. Bearing this in mind, it is not at all surprising that the occasional depredations of the unthinking city motorist into the rural community provoked the fierce resentment of the farmers."

"This has been rather unfortunate from the standpoint of the motorist and the farmer alike, since it hampered the development of contacts which could not fail to result in very substantial advantages to both. The motorist is today one of the farmer's best cash customers. For one thing, servicing the motorist at the roadside is the only way he has ever found of eliminating the middleman of whom he has so bitterly complained."

"This is not at all by any means. There is good reason to believe that the farmers would greatly increase the potential market for their land if they renounced petty antagonism and maintained their farms on exhibition, as it were. Here is where they could well afford to take a leaf from the realtor's book of sales psychology."

"Dr. A. W. Gilbert, the Massachusetts Commissioner of Agriculture, has done exactly this. He went out and persuaded the farmers with show places to permit him to print a pamphlet giving the names and locations of model farms and inviting the motorists to call. The beginning made by Dr. Gilbert is capable of enormous expansion."

"It would soon destroy the lingering belief of the farmer that many city motorists are vandals; it would accelerate the growth of good feeling and understanding between the different elements of the population, which would be one of the most valuable by-products of improved transportation."

"What is can do in the realm of work-a-day things is amply proven by the great increase in roadside marketing. This form of trading is just in its infancy. The extent to which it will grow depends largely on mutual trust, understanding and fair dealing."

Why League Can Not Merge

Function of League Is to Eliminate Waste and Effect Savings—It Has Capital and Other Organizations Have None But Would Control.

Syracuse, Aug. 27.—A stand-pat position in favor of organization of the dairy industry to eliminate marketing waste and effect savings for farmers, and open opposition to any compromise movement was taken by G. W. Slocum, president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., addressing a meeting of more than 1,000 Central New York dairy farmers here today.

At this, the second annual gathering of members of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association of ten counties surrounding Syracuse, Mr. Slocum made his initial appearance in this section of the vast territory served by the farmers' organization. In his discussion he revealed reasons for the declining by the Dairymen's League of the invitation to join the Advisory Board recommended by the Milk Producers' Program Committee on Unified Organization, which for months sought a means of bringing all producer groups together into one organization.

"More efficient distribution and elimination of wasteful methods, which includes duplicate plants, duplicate hauling and unnecessary competition between producer groups are my hobbies," said Mr. Slocum. "In these things lie our greatest opportunity to increase the return to the farmer."

"It is my desire to see our industry organized to eliminate every waste and to stabilize markets by proper handling of surplus. The movement for one united organization is decidedly worth-while, if that is its purpose. I do not hesitate, however, to proclaim my opposition to any compromise movement. We are not interested in any type of organization whose greatest accomplishment is large membership. What we want is an organization that is in a position to meet every marketing problem that may arise, meet it completely and effectively."

In his discussion of reasons for the Dairymen's League failure to join the Advisory Board, Mr. Slocum pointed out that his organization sells the milk of four times as many farmers as does the other associations that would be members, and that yet the League would have had but nine of the 20 men composing the Board.

Mr. Slocum said that the other groups being in the majority would control the Board's expenses, and that even though the League representatives did not approve such expenses it would have to bear its share. The others by majority rule would also, he said, have power to make and change the constitution and by-laws of the Board despite any objections League representatives might have.

One of the outstanding points upon which the League was unable to join the Board, said Mr. Slocum, was the fact that none of the other proposed member organizations possess property or other assets upon which to make good any agreement, while the League with its $12,000,000 of quick assets could be held liable. Still another and equally important factor, said the League president, is that every member of the Dairymen's League is under contract and the Association could easily be held to make good upon agreements entered into in the Board, while the other associations having no contract with their members would be unable to bind their so-called members or guarantee their performance of any act.

In a sensational conclusion Mr. Slocum hurled charges that there are no provisions in the documents creating the Advisory Board providing for its working for greater unity of the producing end of the dairy industry. "It is not the specific duty of this Advisory Board to work for unity of the various milk cooperative marketing associations," said Mr. Slocum. "The specified duties of the Board do not include such instructions. 'One of the other associations that would be a member has publicly reaffirmed their position as being opposed to such unity, and still another of the organizations was created for the purpose of preventing such unity, created at a time when the farmers' representatives were striving for means of bringing all groups together.'"

FRENCHMAN'S "SOCK"

STILL YIELDS COIN

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP)—Gold and silver pieces, fished out of savings bank socks and secret holes, still are dribbling into the Bank of France.

For nearly a year, on every week day there has been a lineup of people waiting to exchange good, hard, pre-war money for the paper that is offered at the rate of about four to one.

Drastic laws passed during the war made it a criminal offense to have gold or silver, but a year ago the folly of such a measure was seen, and the French bankers were appealed to, on patriotic grounds, to exchange their coins for paper.

Tellers at seven windows were busy for weeks taking in the coin that France needed to strengthen its currency, but now one window takes care of the customers.

Pioneers Off To Reunion

A large delegation of members of the 51st Pioneer Infantry left this morning for Poughkeepsie where the fourth annual reunion of the regiment is being held today. C. J. Cooper of Walden, who is first vice-president of the association, is expected to be elected president for the ensuing year.

LEGION MUSICIANS MEET MONDAY EVENING

All who have given their name to Legionnaire Castle as willing to be a member of the Legion Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps, also those who have not and are willing to take part in it, are asked to be at the Memorial Building on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when another meeting of the boys will be held. It is expected that a plan of financing the corps so that instruments can be secured to start rehearsals, will be presented to those who attend. If anyone having a bugle, bass drum or snare drum which they would be willing to donate to the boys, would telephone the Legion Building, Burton Castle or Morton Finch, who have charge of organizing the corps, would be glad to call for them. Any donations of the above would save the boys considerable expense and would be very much appreciated. Several people who are interested in the post having a drum corps have expressed their willingness to instruct the boys in the art of playing the various instruments, which no doubt will be taken advantage of when a permanent organization has been formed.

LEGION BOY SCOUT TROOP MAY BE FORMED HERE

There will be a meeting on Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the Legion Memorial Building at which time all boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years who are interested in forming the American Legion Troop of Boy Scouts, are asked to be present. This does not apply to sons of legionnaires only, but to any boy between the above ages. Edward Luedtke, who was in charge of troop 10 of the Boy Scouts who made a record to be proud of, will have charge of the scouts. Under his leadership and with the cooperation of the boys, Kingston Post should have a scout troop which should make an enviable record for itself.

DOGS NOW ATTEND LONDON WEDDINGS

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Dogs are now part of the up-to-date Mayfair bride's equipment for the altar.

Mrs. Quittin Dick and Lord Howe dispensed with most of the "fixtures and trappings" of the society wedding when they were married at St. Mark's, and also dispensed with the usual honeymoon trip. There was no reception. The bride, however, followed the recent fashion of bringing her dog along, in this instance, a Labrador.

TANK CAVALRY SACK SERVES PARIS NEWSIE

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP)—Many an object brought to France by the American Expeditionary Forces is still in use here. Trucks with "U. S. A." on their radiators are often seen. Ragpickers work in old army uniforms of the United States. But one of the most striking mementoes of America's part in the war is a cavalry pack bag, doing duty as the newsbag of a Paris youngster. It is strapped to the handle-bars of the boy's bicycle.

The relic first belonged to L. Troop of the First Wisconsin Cavalry, but the insignia and markings have been nearly obliterated by fresh stenciling showing ownership to be C Battery 120th Field Artillery, with the red and white circle insignia of the 32nd Division.
